

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An Internet web site portal and a business method for attorneys, who engage in handling product liability cases, to obtain cases from consumers who have been injured by recalled, dangerous or defective products comprising, creating an Internet web site specifically for recalled, dangerous or defective products, said site comprising information, analysis, resources and materials, including links to government agencies and resources, manufacturers, health and medical organizations, claim or settlement programs and product liability attorneys, to provide to the consumer, comprehensive information and resources on recalled, dangerous or defective products, creating specific sub-sites for each category of product and second sub-sites for each specific recalled, dangerous or defective product within each category, each said site, link and sub-site having a link to enable the consumer to contact an attorney (law firm), in the consumer's geographical area, who engages in handling product liability cases, means for the consumer to contact an attorney electronically, by e-mail or by completion of an electronic questionnaire specific to recalled, dangerous or defective products.